CELEBRATIONS

E'Shone Cofield and Trinity Hudson, students at Glen Cove High School, each earned the Golden G, the high school Athletic Department’s most prestigious award. Cofield was recognized for track, and Hudson was recognized for basketball.

Leah Hochman and Laura Chumpitaz are the valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of the Class of 2019 at Freeport High School. Hochman and Chumpitaz were recognized during the Freeport School District’s 51st annual Scholarship and Honors Program, on June 10.

Lucas Pollin, a second-grader at West End Elementary School in Lynbrook, was selected as the winner of the Lynbrook Union Free School District’s Summer Reading Logo Contest. Pollin’s sun logo will represent this summer’s program.

Macedonio Cicala, a junior at General Douglas MacArthur High School in Levittown, was recently presented with the Computing Medal Award from the Rochester Institute of Technology for his achievement in computing.

Philip J. Catapano, Esq., a resident of Sea Cliff, received the Extraordinary Service Award at SCO Family of Services’ annual benefit, held in June. Catapano was recognized for his commitment to the organization, which provides programs and services to under-resourced communities.

Rachel Panjotono, a teacher at Sewanhaka High School in Floral Park, received a Coca Cola Educator of Distinction Award for Exemplary Dedication in the Field of Education. Panjotono was nominated for the award by Sewanhaka High School’s Coca Cola Scholar, Joel-Anthoney Bossous.

Winter Collinson, a fifth-grader (who just graduated) at Lido Elementary School in Lido Beach and a LARC (Learning Activities to Raise Creativity) student, was named the Third Most Philosophical Fifth Grader in America in the Kids Philosophy Slam competition. Collinson conducted research to write a creative response to the question “Hate or Love: Which has a greater impact on society?”

Madison Elias, a science research student at Seaford High School, earned awards at several science fairs this past school year for her project, “The effects of green tea on the long-term memory of the great pond snail.” Elias trained the snails to avoid sucrose using a process called continued taste aversion. She earned highest honors in the biology and medicine category at the Long Island Science Congress fair in the junior varsity division, and she received the Future Scientist of the Year award in the South Asian American Women’s Alliance fair.

Yoel Hawa and Joshua Rothbaum are the valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, of the Class of 2019 at Great Neck North High School. Hawa is a National Spanish Exam Gold Medal and Silver Medal winner; and, Rothbaum is a Regeneron Science Talent Search Scholar.

Nancy O’Connor, a business teacher at Wantagh Middle School and Wantagh High School, has been named as the Business Education Teacher of the Year by the Long Island Business Teachers Association. O’Connor, who is a 1987 graduate of Wantagh High School and has served the Wantagh School District since 1991, currently teaches eighth-grade business management and college-level Virtual Enterprise International Courses. She also serves as adviser to the Entrepreneurial Club, which operates the middle school’s store.
